

Equality Impact Assessment Form (updated April 2011)

This is where you evidence how a policy or practice, or a decision relating to a policy or practice, complies with the general equality duty to:

- Eliminate unlawful discrimination, harassment and victimisation
- Advance equality of opportunity
- Foster good relations

This form is intended to guide and prompt you about the questions and evidence that you need to think about. As indicated in the guidance, this assessment takes into consideration each of the “protected characteristics” listed in the Equality Act 2010 – race, age, gender etc. This assessment should be used to inform any relevant decision about the policy or practice. Please state policy options in the assessment.

9. Does the policy/practice eliminate discrimination and promote equality and good community relations due to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Age • Gender • Disability • Race • Religion/belief • Welsh language • Gender reassignment • Marriage/civil partnership • Sexual orientation • Pregnancy and Maternity 	The Supporting People programme itself promotes equality of opportunity, and meeting the needs of vulnerable groups is an integral part of the programme. Age <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Any vulnerable person over the age of 16 is eligible for supported housing; any dependent children will benefit from parents receiving support. • There are specific schemes designed to meet the needs of older people aged 55+, frail elderly people and younger people aged 16/17 and 18 to 24. • A gap in provision has been identified for young care leavers and additional supported housing schemes have been prioritised. • Additional schemes for older people have been identified and prioritised. Gender <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Existing supported housing schemes accommodate both males and females. • A small number of schemes are gender specific due to specific circumstances of people requiring support, e.g. domestic abuse refuges. • Any new schemes developed will take into consideration all the information gathered concerning gaps in supported housing provision and evidence of need in service design, e.g. a gender neutral domestic abuse service is currently being commissioned

Disability

- Any new supported housing schemes developed have to meet Welsh Government standards with regard to accessibility.
- Some support is already provided for people with disabilities in their own homes through existing floating support schemes and at current supported housing schemes.
- A gap in service provision has been identified for people with a range of physical and sensory disabilities and suitable floating support schemes have been identified as future priorities.

Race

- Some services have been developed specifically for minority ethnic (ME) groups, where there is clear evidence of need.
- There has been an increase in use of direct access services by some ME groups, particularly economic migrants, refused asylum seekers and single refugees.
- People with no recourse to public funds are able to access services, but there is a cost to the service provider, so this is not sustainable for an extended period of time.
- Language Line is available where required and EMAS and a language tablet is on site within the Information Station
- A gap in service provision has been identified for refugees and Gypsy Travellers and floating support schemes have been prioritised for both these groups

Religion/Belief

- People applying for supported housing are asked about their religion/cultural needs as part of the application process and appropriate action is taken where necessary.
- Supported housing schemes would not restrict access on this basis and would endeavour to accommodate any specific requirements arising from a resident's religion or belief.

Welsh Language

- Support providers would make arrangements for people to be able to access supported housing through the medium of Welsh.
- Supported housing schemes would not restrict access on this basis, but some people may be reluctant to accept a place on the basis that Welsh is not the first language

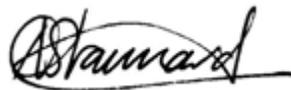

Gender Reassignment

- No impact anticipated – supported housing schemes would not restrict access on this basis. Nobody has indicated that they are transgender since monitoring began, but this may be due to a reluctance to state this.

	Marriage/Civil Partnership <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Some schemes will only accept single people on the grounds of safety and the support is usually individually tailored to address that person's specific needs. • Some existing floating support schemes specifically support young couples/families • Generally fixed supported housing schemes do not cater for couples if they both have support needs, although extraCare and sheltered schemes and some hostels do accommodate couples. If this was identified as a gap in provision, plans for developing an appropriate project could be implemented. Sexual Orientation <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • People applying for supported housing are asked about their sexual orientation. • Support providers should have Equal Opportunities policies, which would outline their approach to harassment of residents based on their sexuality. • Supported housing schemes would not restrict access on this basis. Pregnancy and Maternity <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Existing supported housing schemes are dedicated for young mothers/families. • A service has been remodelled to cater for this protected characteristic, based on evidence of need, to ensure continuity of support. • Additional floating support units have been prioritised for young families with multiple support needs
10. Summary of the impact of the policy/practice on the general equality duty:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Eliminate unlawful discrimination, harassment and victimisation, advance equality and opportunity, and foster good relations: these general duties are fundamental values of the Supporting People programme. • The aim of the programme is to fund the support to vulnerable people from a range of client groups in order that they gain and retain independence by remaining in their own homes or securing appropriate accommodation. • Supporting People programme-funded schemes deliver housing-related support but also have shown to have wide benefits improving health and well-being, reducing crime and anti-social behaviour and returning people back to work, further education and training.
