Martins Law – Educational Setting

The Terrorism (Protection of Premises) Act 2025 (the act) became law on 3 April 2025. It is commonly known as Martyn's Law, and is named in honour of Martyn Hett, one of the 22 people killed in the 2017 Manchester Arena terrorist attack. Martyn's mother, Figen Murray, campaigned over many years for a new law to better protect the public in the event of a terror attack.

Although the Enhanced tier requirements will not apply to premises used for childcare or primary, secondary, or further education.

It is noted that These premises are different to other premises within scope. There are existing safety and safeguarding policies and procedures which establish a range of procedures and measures, for example regarding access control measures and evacuation procedures. However, these premises can be subject to attack, and establishing a basic legal minimum requirement for procedures is regarded as helpful by Government.
