

Reason – to support note 6

On the original plan that was submitted it shows the driveway as parallel to the boundary line. The builder has advised that the left hand side of the driveway (as you look at the house) needs to be square to the house. The 6m would still be adhered to at the bottom of the driveway, but as it gets closer to the house, it will increase due to the angle of the boundary.